I was driving down state Route 204 to the South. trying to follow a long number of cars down the hill. at the merge point a car came up fast next to me and ran into my back of my truck. He was obviously going to fast and had no chance to avoid hitting me. It looked like he was trying to beat everyone in merging into the lane.

I was traveling in the left, non-merging lane, heading out of Lake Stevens towards the tressel, with one vehicle in front of me, another vehicle in the right lane that was merging in front of me, and the offending truck in the right, merging lane behind my vehicle as verified by me looking at my side mirror. The merging lane had ended, and then the truck accelerated into the percieved opening left by the merging vehicle that was now in front of me. The offending vehicle immediately started veering hard in front of my side door to push in front of me. I had no options to move over due to opposing traffic as well as from the vehicles in front of me. I kept driving straight, but had no reaction time due to the offending driver's erratic actions of him suddenly attempting to force his vehicle in front of mine after the merging lane and run off were passed, and while there was heavy oncoming and opposing traffic. I had no idea he was going to even attempt to cut in front, as I had already passed by him before other cars even started to merge. He was driving on the shoulder before he even made contact with my vehicle.

On Monday 2/23/2015 @ approximently 3:15-3:30 pm I was driving Westbound on 204. Upon merging into the left lane I had noticed a black truck behind me & in the left lane a black car.

After I successfully had gotten into the left lane, I noticed the black truck starting to merge in behind me with what appeared to be ample room between vehicles.

I did notice that the black car sped up "so fast" I mean he geared it right on top of the black vehicle, to me it appeared to be "road rage". I saw them both pull off to the side of the road so I was assuming that the car hit the truck.
